Skull & Crossbones

A visit there is like being back in the time to prove your mettle as a bloodthirsty battle to the death with the Old Seafarer and his brethren.

Meet the belly buster and sit and laugh through strange and exotic lands with your old companions Red Dog and Old Joe. (Remember they may be but trust them not.) Tempers soon flare as food is food chaos over the spoils of your piracy.

Skull & Crossbones is the most blood-curdling, crude game on the market — not for the faint hearted! Blood flows, some things spill out, back through the folds of business agreements, arms and legs are... AAAAAHHH! ...it's just disgusting!

There's treasure, jewels, gold and pure wealth to be captured and gleefully consumed to the fullest.

It's a rough and dirty job... and we all want to do it!

RAVE: SAVAGE THAN BARBARIAN RAVE: BLOODIER THAN PRINCE OF PERIA.

HOSTESS WITH THE MOSTESS

Elvira, just about gothic temptress, not the Spanish version of Vera Cruzworth, is to star in Mistress of the Dark on CDi after all. The American former hostess, who is big in more ways than one, was signed up by Tycoon over a year ago, then, after their download, taken over by Accolade who published the 16-bit version of her lusty adventure game. Now, CDi owners can quaff over her, some of Mandy Patinkin will be releasing her 3 bits (Muh-Huh). You can be sure that YC will keep abreast of the situation!

BOB'S YOUR UNCLE?

CLICK. Darn, I have here in my hand a folder containing a proposal for a computer game based around my investigations in Twin Peaks. A game would not be complete without murder, mystery and magic, mixed with a survival blend of pants, midgets, madmen called BOB, evil, fog and disappearing planes of corn. The true identity of the software house is yet to be discovered but the game promises to be a stone the example of where games go when they go too far and I know more. Darn! Watch this up 'Cooper in Computers'. Oh, one other thing. Darn never drink coffee that has been anywhere near a forest. —CLICK.

DOMARK ALL MIXED UP!

Domark, the rather spunky Teenage licensee, has released another completely brilliant compilation from its Putney empire. Now, what a no story is that the mix-up includes Cyberball and Indicators which have never made it onto the CDi on tape or disk before. If you're a loyal YC follower of fashion you'll remember that Cyberball was a YC Fun One and a front cover game back in May last year, if you don't remember, not only have you missed out on a year's supply of YC, but the fact that Cyberball is futuristic American football masquerade at its best. Indicators is a fast and furious tank blast-up where you travel 'round blasting enemy tanks in your aim to take over a space station. The puzzle hit Kix: the ever-popular Panacea from the Planet of the Robot Monsters and old time ARPS completes the five-pack set to take your computer by storm!

UPPERS AND DOWNERS

This month's industry news is a bit like the pill tin, with companies going down one minute and then rebounding less than the next and it all gets a bit complicated - let me explain. Greenlawn side split dead, now it's back with Hunt for Red October and England FC. Since then CHL, maker of such classics as Rocky Horror Show (and embarrassments such as Idiots) Oxyding Challenge, died a slow and painful death, but then a rather outrageous CHL package arrived at YC headquarters under the paradonym "On-Line", and arrangements were made linking the company to CORN.

From Rampage to Rodeo Kids. Activision and parent company Madcatz had peaks but now their fury gone. The Owl Company, in handling their European affairs. Finally, Hewlett-Packard's name was infected with computers when we called, obviously taking a blow from the Activision downfall. Confused? Turn in next month for another exciting episode.

STOP THIEF

When a little bird saw Garry's development guy Gary Boring creeping out of Parliament recently, it was it because he'd stolen part of the Boring set. Meritwise it had something to do with the firing of the new Robin.

Headline "Police at Thieves" starting Robin Dorian as goods-free officers Robin, Brian Blessed, and Mike McGowan (the big man of who a Lisa is it anyway) in YC an easy bit previous or have been stolen out the No 1 Christmas. Interest already. Keep a close watch on this spot (in case it explodes).

GOODBYEE!!!

So this is it, there's love and music, and white chocolate, black and white (but there wasn't time at every Ed's life when the last was becoming a little too comfortable, and a decision must be made to either spend the rest of your life sitting down, or move on to further challenges.

This time has come for me, my readers, to look my own sandwiches, head off into the pale pink sunset, and leave YC behind. I hope that the last year and a half have been as good for you as it has for me. We've had some good times (and some incredibly dodgy ones) and I'll certainly remember the foxy photo story, the DMJ interview, and the Kenny Hunter weekend. I hope you do too.

Things are not all lovely and well though, I'm not disappearing off the face of YC's earth. I'm actually off to adn sister mag 'Rue'

Arrang. and put my own stamp on it. So, if you ever manage to get yourself out of the 14 a bag brother (the Aving, of course) come and join me - the party is not over, it's just moving locations. And you're not to worry about YC either, cause I'm taking it in the more than capable hands of Jeff Daw (that well known YC contributor), and I'm sure he'll be offering you much of the same, and better more, of what you're used to. You'll also be able to sample my literary every issue in the form of Comics Comics (I'll still be editing that for the foreseeable future).

That's about it. You've made my life here very nice, and let's hope I'll see most of you over on 'Rue' shortly. Cheers!!

ENGLAND CHAMPIONSHIP SPECIAL

When you get 22 full-blooded, sweaty males on a footy pitch it's likely that you'll come away with: a) 22 geezers all coughing their guts up. And b) a severe twatting from a rival fan who really doesn't care that you're his brother-in-law (no mercy in war). Rik Henderson gets his kit out once again as he dashes on the pitch to the rapturous roar of "wake up, it's time for work!"

Imagine the scene: two fellows sitting around a big cluttered table with piles of papers and cups of decaffeinated coffee placed precariously to their side. One of them has his hand on his chin and is in serious ponder mode; the other has just had an incredible good idea and is leaning forward in his chair ready to reveal all.

"I've got had a completely splendid idea!" says man in suit 1.

"Oh yeh? grumble man in suit 2. "Pray tell."

"Why don't we release a footy game, you know, maybe they're quite popular of the moment?"

And then do we call this excellent idea of an idea?"

Why not name it after the incredibly superb England footy team that did so masterfully in the recent World Cup?

"England?"
"Yes! Think of the marketing potential!"

So I don't think so. I've got a better idea anyway, let's release a pack of games instead!"

And that, dear readers, is how Dig Ron's Software Limited in the England game got through their fingers, but today for us Starvation has it anyway and we finally get to see a copy.

So what's different about this footy game? Well, aside from it's space? Not a lot to be honest, but what more can be done nowadays. All we can hope for is an improvement on what has been done before, and England is certainly an improvement.

The concept is a well tried and tested one, top-down game-play with loads of action, and a team selection half with great presentation, but it's the way that these are implemented that makes England so truly (as they, in fact) that the most from Dig Ron is to say "Back in a good one. Dully yes!"

Before the game itself is the team selection thingy where you get to choose what team to play from a selection of England, England, and yes... England is second player can be any one of the remaining teams) and you'll then be confronted with an option screen allowing you to choose the players for the team from your huge squad (all up-to-date, of course) with each player having individual ratings out of 5 for Skill, Strength, Speed (Maradona's five, probably) and Energy (which goes down during the game). After a couple of games you'll find that some players are not available due to several reasons, the main one being that they forget to hold back and give the ref a good kicking before being dragged off the pitch by the Belgian Police force.

Now you get on the pitch and you realise that everything is simple, and it doesn't take a genius with an IQ of three billion to realise what was the main inspiration for this section. Fortunately though, is that everything compares far more favourably to Kick Off on the 16-bits than even Kick Off on the common 8-bit.

The action is very smooth, the graphics are better than most other options (pictures of the ref and linesmen coming up when an offence has been committed), no horrible baggy things, the action replays, weather conditions that affect the way the ball moves, better sound effects, need I go on?

The whole of the European Championships are in there for you to try to win, and it's a while since we've said that but I think we've finally come across a worthy successor to English (though International Soccer (that old chestnut). Now, aren't I meant to make some incredibly poor jokes about Grandstream scoring with this one? No, I don't think I shall.

PREMIER COLLECTION

System 3's a company with a very impressive track record. But with this compilation, is it a case of putting all your eggs in one basket? Rik Henderson looks at this box'o'fun...

LAST NINJA

This is the game that really made the software world gasp and go "oh my word, what an absolutely spiffy game indeed!" It's brilliant mix of arcade adventure and beat-'em-up action was so original that it persuaded more than one magazine to call it the best thing since sliced bread. It didn't take too long, though, for sliced bread to become something that was taken for granted, and now Last Ninja also looks very dated.

That said, it's only pale in comparison to it's older brothers (Last Ninja 2, Ninja Heroes, and Last Ninja 3), and against most other arcade adventures it wags the finger with them (after delivering a rather mean roundhouse kick to the knuckles). The 3D viewpoint was (and still is) inspirational, and the game is as polished (and if released on its own today, it would still sell in bucketloads).

DOMINATOR

Not a typical System 3 game, and the story goes that the Cain brothers (by the time it was finished) didn't want anything to do with it. That said it's not a bad little shoot-'em-up. Admittedly, in comparison to the classics released at the moment (St Dragon and Blaxx, to name two of the best) it lacks that certain something, but you'll certainly play it a few times, and if that's the case it can't be all bad.

The graphics are very slick and the speed is of a gaily rate, so your trigger finger will certainly regret it if you don't at least try Dominator.

FLIMBO'S QUEST

This is a very, very good side-view-up and platform game, and I (entirely) admit it back in our June issue. It was an excellent game then, and it's not changed its appeal to me now.

Being very Japanese in style, you must guide our Flimbo around a homonoidally scrolling landscape and shoot all the misbehaving auto-robots. When you shoot the flashing sprite (just before it's smacked for misbehaving) a scroll will appear which, once collected, you take to a shop and eventually make up a word. Once you've finished collecting you'll be There's all much back catalogue lying around the industry at the moment: you're bound to find some of it in any one of these places. A) it could be on a magazine (and IIS name of the games end up on our front cover tape. And C) (the most likely) it could end up in a compilation with games tenuously linked in some way or another.

System 3's now managed to find enough of its back catalogue to lump it all in the same box, and offer it at a mega cheap price to those who have missed the previous carnival. And the lineup is most impressive!

transported to the next level, and so on. Eventually you'll get to the final level and be able to rescue Elmberle (your beloved girl).

Great graphics and a superb variety in gameplay made this into a classic, and keeps it so such.

LAST NINJA 2

Another slice of Ninja action that does even more options and adventuring than its prequel. There is not much more to say about it, apart from the fact that its playability is legendary.

MYTH

Another of the System 3 success stories. Myth was slammed by Nuts! years ago, and punished by itself only a couple of years back. It really depends if you want a game to last a brief few seconds, or several months.

It's another arcade adventure (something that System 3 excels very good at), but this time way much in the standard platform game mould. The graphics and puzzle elements are anything but standard though - in fact they're incredible, and are exactly what you'd want to leave hanging on your console to show off to any of those Spacey coming friends.

You have to travel through several mythological landscapes, finally confronting a big, mean dragon, and giving him a right good beating. Although it's not too easy, the beautiful palette and the gameplay will keep you transfixed for several decades.

Any completion you could mention would always have at least one buffer in its line-up. The Premier Collection's particular burden is Demonator, but even still the game is well worth the space on the tape (or disk). Highlights are definitely Premier's Quest and Myth, and the two Ninja games have to be on any computer game enthusiast's shelf.

Consequently, he says "Nuts without Premier Collection is man without his left leg", and I believe to agree.

INTERNATIONAL KARATE

A typical beat-'em-up that sounds 'fun' in its day, even if it is a little past it now. It follows the once well-trodden path of joystick direction - good, hard punch to the pericardium, and there's about it.

The graphics are arted legions (or Nuts!) and the sound is a tad on the snip side, but in gameplay you can't beat it for sheer Sunday afternoon fun.

□ The Last Ninja - a legend in its own lunchtime. As you can see, there's a few graphical changes between the original and its sequel.

Type: Complete game -
Adventure
Controls: Keyboard

June 1944, somewhere in Bavaria. The midsummer heat glazes down on the air force officers assembled in the courtyard at Luftwaffe 13.

In more peaceful times, the feudal castle you inhabit might have been picturesque, but for you it's a prison. Ever since that night over Düsseldorf when 'Redneck' Charlie bought it in the back and there was no-one to spot that Junkers 88 that crapt up on your Lane, you've been incarcerated in a succession of camps. Now, after three failed escape attempts, you are banged up in the suspiciously inescapable chambers of forests.

Inescapable? No such thing! It's up to you to prove to Jerry that he's taken on more than he can handle.

HOW TO PLAY

Escape is an adventure produced using the Gail, and contains over eighty locations. As you may have guessed, your job is to escape from a German prisoner-of-war camp, using the resources to hand.

As in all Gail adventures, the input required is verbs followed by noun. Entering 'W' for Words will give you a list of all verbs used in the game, and HELP may even offer you some help.

Text can be abbreviated to four letters per word. Just to get you going, try EXAMINE BED as a beginning.

Good luck old boy!

ZAKRON

Programmer: A. Docherty and P. Atkin
Type: Complete game -
Arcade Action
Controls: Joystick (port 2)

Back in those dark days of the A-1 games console, one of the more popular games had you knocking bricks out of walls with a continuously moving ball. Since then, hundreds of variations have appeared on the scene. Basically they use the same, the main difference being the number of levels and the type of extra weapons that you can release.

A VIEW FROM ABOVE

ZAKRON takes the 'BREAKOUT' theme a little step further. Instead of the normal two dimensional playing area, you play on a three dimensional plane. The idea of the game is to accumulate points by knocking bricks out with the continuously bouncing ball. The ball is controlled by the player using a ball, as with all 'BREAKOUT' variations. The difference being that you are ABOVE the playing area.

TIMING IS VITAL

When the ball reaches the bottom of its bounce and is at its smallest, the player has to deflect it by positioning the ball appropriately. The angle of deflection of the ball depends on its point of impact on the ball. When you first see the game you will think that there is nothing to it! When you read, it is not as easy as it looks. Enjoy?

RESCUE

Programmer: David Rayson
Type: Complete game -
Arcade Action
Controls: Joystick (port 2)

Far into the future, the intergalactic war has intensified and expanded in technology and occupation as much that they now are inhabiting and controlling several planets and moons with the aid of an immense communications network based on the planet Earth (which has gained access for it's reliability, but certainly not it's cost).

MEANWHILE

Meanwhile humans have stolen the jobs of many people because of the arrival of the extraterrestrial technology that is cheaper, more efficient and more adaptable to harsh environments. The capitalist government's trust in the security of the network soon diminishes when computer thugs, in league with the exiles, manage to crack the security system and upload all mining activity on the eight planets and moons. The government is not prepared to turn this into a scandal as it has put so much money and effort into the network. So they ask you, one of the top mining space pilots of the age, to travel around the regions and planets and rescue the malfunctioned humans who be awarded a substantial sum of money and pay no taxes for life. You can't resist the opportunity, and head off in the direction of the colonies.

PLAYING RESCUE

Plug your joystick into PORT 2 and control the ship by pushing it left to thrust left and right to thrust right. Up controls the up/down thrust and down controls the downwards thrust (is it the simplest?). Pressing FIRE does not do anything at all (it's a timing and co-ordinated control at the joystick is required if you want to complete all 4 levels, but I must say they do not progress in difficulty therefore keep trying in the early stages. When you go next a humanoid, it jumps up and down ready for rescuing, which you do simply by running past it. If you want to go and meditate, press "P" to pause the game. If the mission gets too stressful, press "Q" to quit and go and have a lie down for a few hours.

TECHNICAL DETAILS

The game is protected against SPARTACUS (ROM disabling and infinite lives functions on cartridges), so just put that nasty protection out of the back and chuck it away. The game code is over 3K long and the graphics take up over 6K. The screens take up to 3K (and no, they are not compressed, who needs to when the program gets compressed anyway). I hope you enjoy the game.

BACKGAMMON

Programmer: Peter Weighill
Type: Complete game + Games Database
Controls: Keyboard

Backgammon is a board game in which the aim is to move all fifteen of your counters around the board and then off, before your opponent. If you have not played the game before and do not know the rules then you should read the instructions included in the game.

After the instructions, the scores are displayed from previous games. There will be all sorts on your list go. If you want to clear the scores press 1 to clear the one player game scores and 2 for the two player game.

You should then press any key to continue.

You will then be asked whether you want to play the computer. Type in Y or N and games restart.

Now the board will appear and the game will begin.

by your opponent then you should type Q to the move question to get your counter back on the board. You must re-enter the counter before you can move any other.

If you cannot move then type N to the move question.

Once you have typed in the piece to move you will be asked "Which dice to use?". You should type in the value of one of the dice displayed in the top right corner and press return.

If you have typed in the wrong number to move and only notice the mistake when you have to input a dice value then type Q and return.

PLAYING THE COMPUTER

The computer is always White. It will display its moves in a column on the right. After it has finished moving its pieces then you should press any key to continue. You should then input your move.

AT THE END OF THE GAME

The game finishes when one player has taken all fifteen of his counters off the board. The game will then be displayed and added to the totals for all games played.

HOW POINTS ARE SCORED

The player who wins the game receives one point for each opponents counter left on the board.

The player will receive triple points if the opponent also has one or more of his counters in the winning players home table.

TAPE PROBS!!!

Oh dear! You've plopped your funky YC cassette into your datascoder and all that comes out is a rasping sound as if it's laying a huge browser number. There could be a few things that are wrong:

A) Your datascoder is completely up that particular creek without a spoon. (Take it back to the place of purchase).

B) The heads are aligned wrongly on your datascoder. (Take it to a computer shop to be checked).

C) The tape is a duffer! (Send it back to the address below with a self-addressed envelope, and you'll receive a new tape within 28 days).

If you send the tape back and we find out that the problem was A or B, Post Apocalypses will personally come round to your house with his baseball bat and knock your cronum for a home run, get our drift.

Send the tape to: YC Tape 17 Returns, Stanley Precision Data Systems, Unit F Cavendish Courtyard, Salford Road, Weldon North Industrial Estate, Gerty, Northants NN17 1JL.

Posty got very bored of Scotland (and very wet) so he's back in the YG offices to answer all your moans and quibbles, after which he's gonna partake in a spot of caber tossing (or at least he would do if he could find a caber to toss in Milton Keynes - possibly a telegraph pole). Write to posty at: Post Apocalypse, YG, 20 Potters Lane, Kiln Farm, Milton Keynes, MK11 3HF.

The Letta of the Munt winner gets a copy of YG's fave game of the month, and every other letter printed receives a free Post Apocalypse badge (oooo!)

Ooh the noo, I'm back from my little trip to the rusty hills of the Outer Hebrides and I can honestly say that I'm glad to be back (for a start me cap was starting to droop). Ho well, on with your pathetic questions...

TO SWIV...

I think your mag is ace and great value for £3.95.

Could you please put a list of all the adventure games, like the Crusade Quested After on the March issue, available for the £4 in your mag? I would be very grateful.

One more thing, what game is better, Swiv or Silkworm?

Allen Gelfy, Glasgow

PA Of course it's a good value, and now that various other scabby mags have put their prices up by loads of dock, we're the only sensible choice that's outside of a pocket money price

The adventure list is definitely something that we'll consider. Like any reasonable close (people writing in asking for that a head to be flushed down the loo will be set about with a large baseball bat that anybody can

And as for Swiv vs Silkworm, they're both completely stonky and if you have a right of playing them you'll probably need mouse psychiatric help, and at least two years in a rehabilitation centre for tired gamers/players

LETTA OF THE MUNF

BIRTHDAY BOY

My birthday is April the 21st.

Would you be able to put Baboon or Total Recall on your next tape please?

Mark Wynn, Address not given

PA, I'm afraid that we can't possibly put those particular numbers on our tape for quite some time. Because they're still selling like hot cakes. Stick with us for a year or two.

By the way, happy birthday! In fact, I'd like everybody to sing the following words with the rest of the VC staff in order to celebrate Mark's birthday (although he doesn't say how old he is)...

HAPPY BIRTHDAY TO YOU
HAPPY BIRTHDAY TO YOU
HAPPY BIRTHDAY DEAR MARK-ARK
HAPPY BIRTHDAY TO YOU!

Have a good one!

Eugene. It's just say that man still sat in there the last time he ventured into a bathroom. It's rumored that water could kill him.

And please, we're very likely to give you something even more shiny on that front in the very near future.

ANOTHER PLEB

In Martin's issue, when I brought VC, I looked at the comments to see what reviews were in. I thought they were pretty cool, then I had a look at the regulars and what did I see? (Please tell me - PA) I saw that beside Boon of the Earth, in small writing, you said you were thinking of changing Boon of the Earth to Pleb of the Earth. I think Boon of the Earth is better.

Richard O'Brien, Dublin

PA, Er... I actually think that Pleb was taken when he asked that in the comments page. If he wasn't I'm sure he's changed his mind by now.

By the way, aren't you the Richard O'Brien that wrote The Rocky Horror Picture Show, and hosts and designed The Crystal Maze? If so, how do you get your dance so sharp. I've even seen Mr. Brown on video but it always looks like a goat skin rug.

CHESTY COUGH

I think your mag is utterly brilliant (things seem to be following a pattern here, I think this time please ask for something - PA).

I would like to get a few things off my chest, so could you answer these questions for me?

1) On the November 1996 mag, the readers could send off for a free tape. I sent off for it and it never came. What happened to it?

2) Will you please, please put a pleasurable demo of Super Monkeys QP on the cover tape?

3) Is it possible to get Pleb and Forget for the Cheat? How much would it be? And where could I get it from?

4) How do you get into the secret room in Rainbow Islands?

Adam Brinkley, Glasgow, Derbyshire

PA, Could I answer your questions? Er... Eh... long and hard... Nope! Oh all right then maybe I should...

1) To cut a long story short - the end! Let it just say that everybody's got their tapes by now and will be currently looking on Mafab at I speak.

2) If you remember, we tried to do this a couple of years ago but somebody at US Gold said I think that this game was the sort of thing that you'd be able to put on the tape due to it a prototype (no immediate realisation of various short levels etc.)

3) Hang on a sec, I'll ring up Tins, the company behind the secret game. Brrrrr! Click. Oh bugger, the money won't go in the slot... What are a game's a/c... Click. Oh wait - I'm off to play Road Masters instead.

4) I think you'd better ask that Paul Raby. Doctor Eugene, he's the so called expert on these things.

POSTER APOCALYPSE

VC is a cool mag (there we go again), you tell me definitely up for something - PA) So what's Paul Raby doing in it? Well we're on the subject of disgusting things, which was the last time Doctor Eugene had a recent Clump, into less personal things.

Next time you publish a poster, please make sure that there's no useful stuff, like a resume, on the other side of it. And the playable demo of Snow just loaded. I've gotta have a crack at it. Keep on supplying other amazing maps (er... well, at least something that looks like a 100% complete map, see ya?!

5) Pital, No address given PA. (3 mins later) There is well worth 88%, it's weird! Keep 'em doing weird!

PA, How rude can you get? Paul's now looking himself in the pen with the big stone bag and refuses to come out. When games haven't offer him the reaction of a whole lot of darkness must not to get him to not his domain. And if we ever want him to write another Madventures for us, we've gotta give him a good supply of Dr's Eye-Jumbo Cod Fish Fingers (in the shape of a bag, as he said we them on last (they turn quite a white, like brown) As for Gaur!

OOZIN' EUGENE'S SCUM OF THE EARTH

It's that time of month when we put Ooze's Eugene out of bed, shake him down and give him a pencil and a piece of paper. So put your hands together for the king of crime time TeeVee...

When people say to me, "Ooze? Why is your complexion so easy?", I tell them to use new "Cheese Paste" spot cream. It makes them zing come up real fast. Now on with the show...

PASSWORDS
Class 2 - HARVEY
Class 3 - ELLA

CREATURES

Another cheat for a Thelma game: this time thanks to Keith Wiskley, a true winner.

Plug a joystick in port one. Wait until the movie at the beginning fades away, then when the fuzzy wuzzies on the highscore table stop dancing, wiggle the joystick from side to side. They will start to jump up and down, and after what seems like ages they'll stop jumping, turn gray and you'll be able to start the game with infinite lives.

overtakes many more until you're in first position.

Always buy power steering when you buy a very powerful car, if you don't it's like driving a car on ice or snow.

Never buy spin wheels, it's completely useless.

SUPER CARS

Paul Wilson 3 - The Wilson Strikes Back, coming to a meg near you soon. In about one paragraph's time to be exact. He who is ever so good at tip supplying us with tonnes for this tip down reader, and gets a bonus for it.

TIPS
Always top up on engines, tires, fuel and body.

If you have enough cash, try to buy side armor. This will prevent your car's body from being smashed in for a couple of races. Also, try to buy front and rear mirrors, "cause if you hit 2 cars with them you don't have to

Paul Wilson also hands this previous VC cover game on a plate, and gets in extra fun for ## doing so

This is what you do to finish the game. You have to get into debt as much as you can after you end one everything else is in order to release a game, but before you exit to the magazine box, making 100 members of stuff. Now exit to the map, after which you'll find that you're lost.

Now play the game again, and exit to the magazine straight away (do not do anything else). If you keep exiting to the map, your income will go right up, and you'll have won the game.

POKES

by Peter Dinklage

The pokes this month (as they usually are) supplied by Aaron Hilgert, who wins an extra two quid on to his total if there is no SWS number it means that the pokes are for use with a cartridge (available from Data, BDI, and other manufacturers)

WINGERS' CORNER

If you can help any of the following please send us your tip:

John Dooling from South Africa would like some on-line help for our classic tape game, Katak. If you know anything about this game, send your replies to Paul Rigby in Missoula, Montana.

Steven Benton of Kingsbridge, South Devon, wants cheats for both

Stonford and The Urzuchtstabs, but would prefer poles with an SVS number 'cause he hasn't got a cartridge.

Garrett Madden, Farnham, is interested in a pole for Double Dragon II (See above).

Jamen Ajlolt, Colchester, has a problem with the ancient American game (the budget label owned by USI lost before Kung Fu was released). He says that every 3 levels there is a password, but does not know when or where to type it in.

Michael Alves, Brandon, Sussex, has recently bought Hero Remo, and although he thinks it's brilliant he would like to know how to get past the first level.

FOOTY CORNER

This month's Footy Corner is completely covered by Billy Gallagher's extra games for each of the games.

PREMIER II

Look at the top of your team. There's a team's name (you can change it) and 11 players. The game will only end if you win the game again. To get some help to get a better team.

WORLD SOCCER LEAGUE

Change your name and you can play the game with a new name. Change names to 14 and you can play the game.

MICROPROSE SOCCER

Send your name of the game to the publisher.

WORLD CUP SOCCER

Go into shooting and you can win some money. If your team comes in. Then you can win some money. If you win a trophy. (Position player in the game and take them to the game.)

LEVEL 1 - THE CAMP.

SUMMER CAMP

SUMMER CAMP - THE MAP

Here's a map for level one of this classic Thelamus game, one of Aaron Hilliard who wins a trophy for his efforts.

That's your lot, you muddled! If you've got any ideas on how to make this column even better don't hesitate to get in touch with me at the usual address. Hang loose...

I just received your letter about the situation with the school and I am so sorry to hear that you are having such a hard time.
 I am sure that you will find a way to make it all work out in the end.
 I will be thinking of you and your family all the time.
 Love,
 Mom

1. The first step is to identify the problem or question that needs to be answered. This involves understanding the context and the specific requirements of the task.

Wiggle It Too

THE SCORING SYSTEM

ENGINE - This is how well the joystick is made inside (i.e. does it have microswitches or what?)

BODYWORK - This is how sturdy the joystick is, and how much torture the exterior can take

STEERING - This is how accurate it is directionally

RELEASE - This is how long the joystick will last before coming out

TOP SPEED - This is the overall rating for the stick.

All of the above ratings are given in MPH. The first four are marked out of 50 miles per hour, and then this is added up to give a Top Speed.

After this in 'The Showroom' we give you an indication of what our joystick is most comparable to.

The games we tested the sticks on were Continental Circus - Virgin, and Super Cars - Gamin. The radically different gameplay of these should give us a general idea of how they perform (an all over road-test if you like).

STEERING - Very small movements required leads to responsive action. The shaft is just the right length too. 45 MPH
RELEASE - The base feels a bit flimsy, but the shaft has a metal rod. The button may feel a little, but there's no other to fall back on. 39 MPH

TOP SPEED - A very neat joystick that could travel anywhere with you. It's accuracy does it proud. 184 MPH

THE ARCADE

ENGINE - Nice chunky microswitches housed in a tight environment. No auto-fire though. 35 MPH
BODYWORK - It's very nicely in your mitts, and although there's only one fire-button, it's positioned at it's wiggle time in Joystick city once again, as Rik Henderson, the man with the sticks, gets 'em out and gives 'em a good thrashing.

FLASHFIRE BE-BOP

ENGINE - Leaf based joystick which means you don't know (by sound) if you're pointing it in a direction or not. The fire button is microswitched, but again, there's no auto-fire potential for today's gaming! 35 MPH
BODYWORK - Erm... Er... It's truly ugly! It could be made of old cereal packets and I'd be near the water. 16 MPH

STEERING - It's like old steering a bowl of soup syndrome, although the stick itself has a strangely accurate feel. 35 MPH
RELEASE - Unless you keep it in its box it'll probably fail to bats within a month (especially on a game like Super Cars). 10 MPH
TOP SPEED - Not the poorest joystick in the world but not the best, and is not really

STEERING: Works quite well considering. You don't have to be a speedster to still the stick around and the directions are very tight. 55 MPH

MACH: With very little stress I could imagine the steering in two. The stick itself is a bit on the weak side. 15 MPH

BOOSTERS: Expensive! The whole thing is shaped like a fighter plane's controls (and is so big too) although it could be considered as a bit better. 45 MPH
STEERING: Perhaps a little too much leeway between directions, but on the whole, very responsive. 45 MPH
RELEASE: This is your last day of joyrides, so you'll probably be better to only use it for those special games. 55 MPH

ZOOMER

ENGINE: Although this is a huge bugger, when we get down to the nitty gritty it's exactly the same inside and works on the same principle. It has a rather bulky joystick that you can set the speed on, but the stem doesn't have macroswitches (neither do the fire buttons) 38 MPH

PODWORK: - Very nicely designed to look and act like a light-gate controller 42 MPH

STEERING: - For any game other than a driving sim or a flight sim you really would be better off forgetting that it even exists 12 MPH

MILEAGE: - Pretty well built, and unless you're a light sim-a-holic you'd when prepared 38 MPH

PODWORK: - Very odd fashioned, and made out of old Action Man, probably it's a tad odd if you got my drift 25 MPH

STEERING: - Fairly tight and accurate. It doesn't slot into those ruggedized quite as well as it should 25 MPH

MILEAGE: - I wouldn't fling it about too often, but it feels a bit more sturdy than most of the Contender joysticks. 41 MPH

TOP SPEED: - A good cheapie that'll keep you going for a year at least (and

So that's it for another year! Top on the track this month was definitely the Contender Challenger, a big winner of a beast. But it still doesn't weigh up to last month's winner, Bondwell's Maverick 1, which is the best joystick you can buy (it's off-road). We'll also like to point out that there was a mistake in last month's Wiggly 11. In our lead up panel (The Scoring System) we mentioned that Bondwell won the marketing for Logic 3 (makers of the 174 MPH rated Stingray joystick). In fact, it is Spectrovision who is responsible and we'd like to apologise to both companies concerned (Post Apocalyptic has already beaten me about the head and other parts with a baseball bat)

STAR PROBE

ENGINE: Again, excellent macroswitches all round. The joystick is one of the best ever used too. 45 MPH
PODWORK: - Looks very attractive, but the plastic used is very flaky. Very well designed in the ergonomic sense too. 41 MPH

STEERING: - Tends to need a good yanking about before the directions are found. And it's a fine line between the rigid directions and the sluggish. 37 MPH

MILEAGE: - Unfortunately we've had one of these in the office before too, and I was kept after a couple of games of R-Type (actually, quite a few games of R-Type actually) 35 MPH
TOP SPEED: - A nice looking joystick that performs admirably if not for the distance the shaft has to travel between directions, and the plastic that's used for the stick. 103 MPH

RARE The arcade action thriller with the BIG finish. Introduce the criminal underworld - your mission is to seek out and destroy the king pin of the MR BIG CORPORATION - if you get that far.

You'll have to subvert his enormous army of body guards... gangs of charisma-bypass patients in trench coats, the bullet brain with the heart of a rhinoceros and the breath of a dung beetle, packs of vicious canine yuppies, the psychotic clown with an evil sense of humour - you'll die, but not laughing! Then there's the you-puzzling cabler Jack - a cool assassin, always hanging on the deer trail, a serious looking piece in his hand and ready to blow you away as he rolls down main street leaving you coughing blood. It's not all bad!... You've got a chopper to back you up, a mean, ultra street machine, some heavy metal hardware and some pretty neat scenes. And what about the king pin... did I say he was Mr. Big? No, he's MR BIG!

The Arcade thriller takes you from the bright lights of Paris to the fogged terraces of the London. Your mission is to seek down, shoot and apprehend the dangerous criminal. It's FASTER - explosive power chucks you hurtling through various terraces - hold the bus or plough the fields! It's TOUGHER - the criminals wield some heavy hardware - but so do you! You can shoot but you must dodge their fire... heavy gunfire, trucks unloading their cargo onto your bonnet... It's the meanest pursuit game to hit the video screen.

The extra features will leave you gasping for extended play: weather changes, bodyguard squads, grenade lobbing bikers, gun-choppers... just play it!... we dare you to stop!

MISADVENTURE

A near-perfect benchmark may have been overlooked enough to not be a strange occurrence in last month's last section. A hint for a game I have never reviewed? A back-up on an incredible feat and tips service with forward planning? See next question.

I wonder if I've started a trend? Hints before the review appears, hints for the confused who did notice the hint last time to guess the full review of the cracking RPD below. At the moment it is on import only. However, several facts of Canada Games have informed me, after two packets of card read and four leaves of Mother's Pride were exchanged during heated negotiations, that Windage have an eye on a European deal. So, if you can beg from one hint to further for a bit you may find the Magic Candle at a reasonable price in the near future. For the impatient I recommend getting in touch with Computer Adventure World and buying the import version post haste, if not sooner.

REVIEW

Arriving on two disks plus a well produced, 50-page manual, The Magic Candle looks a little like an Ultimate imitation (graphically). Set in the world of Drzewo, the Magic Candle holds captive the evil Drzew (Draught source inevitable) now as the guardians of the candle have disappeared and the candle is burning down. When it disappears Drzew is free to do a bit of the frightening and killing. Your team must save Drzew.

The Magic Candle (TMC) may look pretty iffy, graphically, by today's standards but the main attraction lies within the design. For example, the boring method of back'n slash is kept down to a bare minimum in the game concentrated upon puzzle, plot and role-playing which is what the RPDs are all about, after all. Also, you will find a hint to the numbers of monsters. They are only re-generated when a 'new patrol' enters the area - about every three game months. However, dungeons have a fixed number of monsters. Once they're dead there's no more.

In addition characters are ready-made. There is no character creation, no stats, no routines here because, say Winterset, a bunch of numbers do not give 'character' or personality.

A major feature is the option of splitting your party into several groups. So when you enter town you can send a couple of your team off to work for some cash, others to train in different types of warfare, others may wish to hit the tavern to collect info and so on.

Splitting the party is mostly done inside the town. However, you can leave a character behind (out of your party of six) because combat can still be successful with two characters. The chess left in town could be learning spells or working for someone. This is an ideal method of earning money for the party. So when the party returns you've got a bunch of cash you can use, from your character's savings (through skills such as a feller or generator). In addition, though, there is one part late in the game where you will need to split your party into three pieces in order to solve a puzzle.

There's nothing more frightening than a fully luminated Paul Rigby, and that's what we get this month thanks to the Magic Candle...

When you enter the candle realm you will see another good design aspect of TMC - the variety intelligence varies (they each have an intelligence rating) but when you do meet intelligent opposition they use specific tactics. They appear to realise who your weakest people are, single out your weakest as a priority kill, etc.

There is a good use of stats such as individual weapon skills: bow, staff, sword skill, etc. Magic can only be learnt from books and the included spells only learnt from contemplation periods of concentration. Once a spell has been cast it has to be re-learned. Good, this prevents the magic users dominating the game.

Magical-powered weapons are few and far between in TMC. There are enchanted weapons but you will never find a powerful weapon randomly. There is

IT'S WICK-ED!

So who are Mendham? Ah, Alameda. "Mendham started about two years ago, there were three of us at the time: myself, Miguel Asencio (my wife) and James Thomas. We have developed one title before The Magic Candle [TMC - now now on] developed for OSI called Rings of Zifin. It wasn't terribly successful. But successful enough to encourage us to try again."

I asked Al where the idea for TMC actually originated.

"Oh, that's obscured by time, it's now been four years. Some of it is in the Rings of Zifin. Anyone who has played Zifin will recognize certain features that were present in both. Such as the mushrooms. There were many things I would have liked to change in Zifin, but couldn't because the design was locked at that time. So when I had a chance to start all over we had Magic Candle."

TMC was part of the classic "Ultima" type lockdown. Why choose that viewpoint and not The Bard's Tale last-persona viewpoint?

"That was a personal preference on my part. I've always enjoyed Ultima more than Bard's Tale. Speaking of "Influences", I'm sure the influence of Ultima is there. That cannot be helped because Ultima is the classic, they did it first."

One of the main reasons for the Ultima viewpoint is that Al always gets lost in the Bard's Tale-type games? I can sympathize! Al added:

"I find it painful. You have to map. I know that, nowadays, they are coming out with auto-mapping but even then doesn't seem to help. I always found it more enjoyable when I played the top-down games."

A refreshing aspect of TMC is that magical users are actually allowed to wear armor and carry substantial weapons. A real change from the normal game which has your wizard clad in a dirty cloak and a wizard daggert to protect him when he's run out of spell points, or whatever. Why was this decision taken, was it sympathy for magicians?

"[Laughs] In a way, I guess. If a wizard is willing to wear armour, why shouldn't he be able to if they run out of spells, what are they going to do? Well, to be stopped or put down? Why don't they start wearing something? Clearly, they're not going to be good at it, their skill besides the staff, that is? Hmmm? Yes, that's right, where's the auto-mapping?"

"We did provide one mechanism which gives you an overall map of the dungeon. But you have to solve a puzzle first."

One minor criticism I had, in the house, was that it could have done with more signs to tell me where things were situated. Al's response to my request?

"Everybody is asking for it and you got it if it's going to be there in the sequel [see elsewhere]. It was too late to put it in TMC for the time we realised."

is well loved. But at least they have a fighting chance."

As Al has mentioned already, these old games "Rings of Zifin" included mushrooms, plants and herbs which gave beneficial effects. A similar feature is included in TMC (I must emphasize, at this point, that TMC is not a Zifin clone, it is vastly different). So why mushrooms?

"This is very embarrassing. Many people ask me that question. I think people expect me to say that they're related to drugs or something. It's not true. I don't know, I had to think of something and that just popped (boom - Paul) into my mind. There's no big reason behind it. I certainly have no desire that they be related to drugs or anything like that."

Right, follow me down into the dungeons. Dark isn't it? Notice something,

MC2 - EXCLUSIVE!

In Magic Candle 2, you will travel into the lands of the enemy. The plot revolves the missing guardians mentioned in the review, who you will have to rescue. The title of the game will be called "The Magic Candle 2 - The Fear and Fury". The latter loving the guardians. Graphics will be much improved as Mendham have a new artist.

A very interesting ability in the sequel is the option to have a detailed conversation with your party. You will be able to hear advice from your party. For example, if you are in a particular location, one of your party may have actually been there before so he can give you a few tips about possible enemies or traps.

VIRTUAL REALITY WORLD PRESS ~~DUNCH~~ LAUNCH

Imagine experiencing an artificial world within a world. Jeff Davy thought this needed five cans of Crucial Brew until he was enticed to Womb-en-ley (Conference Centre) to witness the world launch of 'Virtual Reality'.

"Virtuality is now reality" screamed the giant video which showed two silhouetted figures wearing strange helmets and looking like some more other-worldly cast members of Adam.

Three roared out... Walk through this tin bag tunnel, they said. Wear the badge, they said. Drink the beer, they said. Watch the promo video, they said. Listen to the man, they said. Sit down and put the helmet on, they said.

...And suddenly I was in the cockpit of a fighter. Well, a computer-generated fighter anyhow. A virtual take-off, the ground slipping away beneath me and a war of jets from behind. I moved my head, looking up and around, and spotted five benches passing to and fro in front of my plane... and in front of my sights... a burst of machine gun fire finished off one or two of them. A click on the second joystick and a missile speeds off to destroy another plane. And a refuelling jetplane before me, jets over the blue ocean. Then everything turns out of vision...

Quickly a black helmet has been lowered by a light-guied W Industries operative. So it's on from V 104, (that's the name of the game, as Abba used to berate others). Go, goes the helmet, again.

And it's also deep space for a real battle. A stereo guitar-rock soundtrack seems from the headphones. Speakers on each wrist by the game. The gun lights were fixed, a live point-and-fire HUD, and laser death was simply forthcoming. Star fighters soared into view and were blasted to space-dust. What a game, now, yeah...

And back again to reality. An apparently, perhaps, to look about the hardware involved.

For the sit-down laptop 'Virtuality' game, players of us you would expect in a huge moulded plastic seat (which has a screen set into it so other players can see what you're seeing). They grasp a joystick in each hand and have the special 'Weather' helmet placed on their head. This looks like a welding helmet with a space between a small ear bumper and some cooling thing-chaits fixed to the front.

The difference between all this and a normal sports game comes with the view you get. As you move your

The 'Virtuality' system has an interesting companion in its stand-up counterpart, which won't be available in arcades. Using a different unit, the same helmet design, and a joystick or a special glove, players can move about in an artificial environment, actually interacting with objects. Watching someone doing this is quite funny - they move head, so what you can see changes accordingly. If you move your head around to the right, your view follows and the same with left, up and down. What's dangerous is a different and really quite good!

their head about and grip their air and look quite mad. It's only when you see the screen on the wall does it all make sense, as you see what they see. This is intended for serious business and research use, although it

YES - IT'S YOUR VERY OWN CUT-OUT-AND-KEEP VIRTUAL REALITY HEADSET!

You too can experience "virtual reality" with YC's special offer. Just follow these easy instructions:

What you will need:

This page of YC
1. flexibly sharp pair of scissors
1. piece of string or springy elastic
1. large hammer

1. Cut carefully around the thick outer lines, taking care not to stab yourself with the pair of flexibly sharp scissors (you may need a grown-up to help you, he he)
2. Push the costume through the bander's eyesoles (marked 1 and 2) and through the holes at either end (marked A and B)
3. Fold along the thin dotted lines
4. Tie one end of the string/springy elastic to hole A and the other to hole B
5. Place headset over head
6. Hit yourself with the large hammer, to create the slightly blung, "virtual reality" effect.
7. Now wave around - amazing, isn't it? Just like the real thing!

could easily have future applications. These games (which about a week-year chess game where two players in opposite poles of the world appear to be in the same room, actually moving their pieces?)

Y TOL and Earthsphere will be in activities over the coming months and will probably cost a packet (it's OK now but look out, because it can only get better than here)

ALSO... VIRTUAL SURREALITY!

YC says: Why go to great lengths to create reality when virtual reality could be much more interesting? Inspired by Salvador Dalí, surrealist artwork could be able to walk and interact with strange, swirling clouds, colourful abstract landscapes and, of course, fish. As Salvador Dalí said: "Surrealism" (perhaps)

CLUEDO MASTER DETECTIVE

And I was sure she did it. For a start she was wandering all over the house and cooking with laughter - she'd either murdered somebody or was making herself understood!

When it comes to mysteries, there's nothing as mysterious as the YC tin of Spam. When Simon Dale tried to find it one day, all he found was an empty tin with the lid open, and a suspicious Ed with breath that smelled of chopped pork and ham. So he decided to load up this latest offering from Virgin instead...

Cluedo Master Detective is a version of the old Waddington board game Cluedo - and before now was only available in America. But now an under-developed little got the chance to try it on our British American file.

You have a choice of ten players, all of which can be controlled by the three different skill levels of computer, or by humans, or a mixture of the two (by that I don't mean a crossbreed between a human and a computer). Although you must have a minimum of three players otherwise the game would become too easy.

After you've picked one of the characters, the computer will roll the dice for you and you can move your detective about the board. To win the game you must establish who the murderer is, the murder weapon and the scene of the murder. To do this you will have to look at the set of cards held by each active player.

There are two ways of looking at a player's cards. The first way is to accuse a player of the murder, then the players holding the cards you selected must show them. The second way is to move onto a magnifying glass screen, then you can look at one of any player's cards. Each of the cards will have either a room, a weapon or a

THREAT?

Unfortunately, because this would take absolutely yards of screen, you only play one set in each round.

The graphics are reasonable, and the top-down viewpoint for the action is pretty original (it was the first birds game to adopt this). The game is easy to play, and the action is as smooth as it comes. If you're a fan of two games knocking their tails about with large birds, you'll simply love Passing Shot.

GREAT GURIANOS

ENCORE £2.99

Oh dear! Oh dear, sorry me! Why, oh why, oh why!

It says on the cover that Great Gurianos is previously unpublished on its own (having only been mentioned on one of the many Elite compilations), and it would take a person with 20/20 eyesight to see why I can honestly say that I've not seen a better game that is quite as good as this.

very feeble effort. Even the Intimate Pro Mountain Bike Simulator looks like Last Ninja 3 when compared. The only game that could touch it for pure creepiness is Kenny Dalglish Soccer Match, but that's an full-price only title. It's okay using the word 'creep' fifty thousand times, but what is the game really like? And why is it so darn annoying?

You are Great Gurianos, a bike with a shield and a sword, and you have to move your shield and sword in order to avoid being hit and tried by a Pterodactyl for any other reason, and such the occasionally appearing sanity-endowed folklore. The background scrolls on it, even as you do your Maze game thing along, and every so often you can pick up something that tells at your feet. And if there's more to it than that, I can't say I'm sorry to have missed it.

The most humorous thing is that this is a coin-op conversion, and the fact that nobody on earth has heard of the arcade machine it comes from is anything but amusing. I wanted to buy a fund for two pounds and surely miss games! I'd jump into a job shop and get a plastic one.

RATING: YOU MUST be joking!!

EVER CA THE BUG

Our own Paul Rigby chats to our own Jeff Davy about his shady past.

This is the tale of an occasional writer devoted to producing your own future. Rather than diving straight into the nitty-gritty of recommending software, hardware and all that we at YC thought that we would be a right turn of events... or sensible changes to giving you a number of first-hand accounts as to just what is involved. There are a number of reasons for this. Firstly, reading about someone else's mistakes saves your time by, hopefully, stopping you making the same common mistakes of your own, also many fantastic editors, editorial teams, etc have vastly different ways of approaching the problem. Therefore, showing you that there are other ways to tackle the production of a fanzine. These are no hard-and-fast rules.

Two issues ago you may remember that I started to do Wish You Were Here (Rodgers, editor of Adventure Probe). This month I sat on the doorstep of the Right Honorable Jeffrey Davy (contributor to this very mag, and soon-to-be Editor-in-Chief) and asked him to tell me about The Bug. Of course I would push the credit home his Gold Top.

The Bug was the ready name for one of the first computer fanzines around. Initially devoted to the Spectrum it diversified to include many other formats including the dear old C64 but what were its origins? When did the first issue appear? Jeffrey: "Let's think, it was August 1984 - what, I believe made us the first computer games fanzine. We thought, 'Well, why not?' We didn't know anything about fanzines, I didn't really know what a fanzine was, we wanted to do a magazine and that was that."

So along with James Lewis, and brother Sidney and Alex Page they started The Bug on a fortnightly basis, which rounded to monthly and then, "... monthly regularly."

Towards the end of its life it shifted to become more of a quarterly. Apparently the longrunning time table was nothing to do with a week of interest but more to do with the increasing difficulty of producing it (it began with 10 pages, grew to 20, then 30, and then 40, and then 50, and then 60, and then 70, and then 80, and then 90, and then 100, and then 110, and then 120, and then 130, and then 140, and then 150, and then 160, and then 170, and then 180, and then machines (y'know the same shaped ones?) supplied by a local community group called The Actual Workshop.

"We actually went to about five different places to produce the magazine in the early days. We did one where we worked with our school but they copied up the printing. They weren't as enthusiastic about the mag as we were. Then we went to another community place in Tottenham. They had an astounding array of technology that gave us the ability to make electronic stimuli during production. It could scan an image from printed artwork (all drawings cut out, strung up and stuck on to a piece of paper) into a stimuli that would be used on a computer. That cost less than a drink, really. Because of the subsequent community-thing."

So The Bug was, at one time, indirectly supported by Harringay Council? The move to the electronic stimuli meant that The Bug could use logos and fancy artwork. Text was now produced, in a column format (like the text in YD) in an Amstrad PCW in an attempt to integrate computers into The Bug. A Mainframe was plugged into the back of a Spectrum (they were, generally, Spectrums oriented at this time). Screens were grabbed with this and printed out onto thermal paper using a ye old Alpha printer. "The word bug was that when it came into contact with Pro-Bike or light, in fact, it tended to fade rather rapidly! So it had a rather short life span when it was printed out and finally appeared."

A C&D explosion? producing game screens for use as advertisements for a magazine would be the Dean's Action Replay (now, of which, in a later issue).

Jeffrey Grey also used other techniques to fit screenshots onto paper. "We even started out by printing photographs because the continuously centre had a special process camera. What tends to happen is that when you try to copy black and white photographs, the ink tends to bleed in one place because of the huge amount of dark/black areas in one area. Whereas the process camera breaks the image up - like newspapers, into little dots, which spreads the ink out more evenly."

There is a cheaper method of producing newspaper-type photos. All you need is access to a photo-copier and a good stamper. What you need to buy from the Mainframe is a sleeve-type thing which has a white cover on the back and a small transparent front covered in tiny dots (so the text, you then copy the photo, whilst at the same time, the copy you will get will be a single with dots giving you a more balanced photo. Don't worry about bleed areas or the exact method of using this thing. It's not out for technical details in a future issue. But you get the general idea.

It was at this time that a distribution company called GSD approached The Bug and offered them a deal whereby they would distribute the magazine, sell some advertising and offer general support. Unfortunately, The Bug were unaware that GSD were in deep financial trouble. Coupled that (at this time) GSD actually interfering with content when they promised that they would not and you can understand how alienation quickly lead to great disappointment and a final parting of the ways.

Making the public aware of the magazine was the one of the most important aspects of the operation (and is so for any fanzine editor). At one time Jeffrey and the gang were able to afford a stand at the Musicians selling the mag than, when they were unable to afford the stall, they wandered around the centre selling the magazine and sold it there! Local shops were approached and individual deals negotiated. Basically arranging that the shop take a cut of the sales the magazine produced. Other methods of gaining publicity coincided with the famous boom so The Bug was mentioned in the likes of Crash and Amiga, TV programs like Get Fresh and Spinal (remember them?) and later magazines like CTW (mainly because the members of The Bug would continually write and complain about different aspects of computers such as text on computer games and so on). The breaking of C&D also attracted media coverage in the trade mags.

Next month I'll continue The Bug story with a look at the mag team and how it was designed, how The Bug team had to battle against the "you're just a bunch of kids" attitude, how they got the bug companies to advertise and send free software and cash, copies of readers from our Jeffrey, like ya read month...

FISTS OF FURY II

Confuseous, he say, man with black rubber mask on face is man with sweaty eyebrows. Simon Dale delves into the art of beating the frag out of somebody with just a Bavarian garlic sausage.

Fists of Fury II is a compilation of four family fighting games - Shinobi, The Ninja Warriors, Double Dragon II and Dynamite Duo.

SHINOBI

Well Joe Musashi you've got yourself in a bit of a mess. You, the master Graduate from Ninja school, have let the evil and sinister Bushi Foo walk off over you and kidnapped some of your students, and needless to say that when their parents find out they will be very angry indeed. So pick up your ninja stars and your magic wand, and shove Shinobi into your cassette machine.

I'm surprised that while playing Shinobi that I found it more playable than the snags version (but then, aren't ALL console 84 but you must be careful! 'Cause you can only survive one or two blows (depending on what type they were). Although you're not completely defenceless as you're able to kill a man just by kicking him in the leg, also you have an unlimited supply of ninja stars which will become more powerful weapons as you collect more and more, ninja nippers, and finally you have a magic weapon which disintegrates every baddie on the screen.

One annoying thing about the game is the control, for jumping on top of buildings, which is held down like the key for about five seconds after which an rings star then moves the joystick up. In the instructions it just says fire and up. This game has reasonable graphics and sound, and is definitely not lacking in the special stakes.

NINJA WARRIORS

This next game, The Ninja Warriors, could be the birth of a brand new genre. Instead of being Robocop or a Ninja Turtle you are a Roboninja - well actually you're not, you're somebody else who has been chosen to control this particular roboninja from a very sophisticated, and up to date, computer terminal called a Commodore 64 (of course).

"But why?" I hear you ask, "Why do I have to control this thing (connection left)? Well the reason is that a scientist called Mike bumped into you on the street one day and said "Hey, do you want to control my roboninja, constructed from the finest myobots-memses, on an assassination of President Burger?" "Yep", you said, and that's how the whole thing started.

The Ninja Warriors is another fighting game in the same kind of style as Shinobi. This time you have limited supply of ninja stars, only thirty which will disappear very fast if you waste them on the baddies that can be easily decapitated with one slash of your specially sharpened ninja knife. Happily, being a Roboninja, you are not as easily destroyed as you have a full bar of energy.

Unlike Shinobi, you also have the opportunity of two players playing at once. But will two roboninja be enough to wipe out all the Soldiers - with knives, guns, and bazookas - the dogs, the big weed-monsters that are hard to kill, and the mayor? Good graphics, sound and variety make this game one you will keep coming back to.

game. The game involves mauling about on a level full to the brim with baddies, and trying to rescue your missing ninja graduates,

DOUBLE DRAGON II

If you didn't hear of Double Dragon II before, you may be thinking that this is a game in which you and a friend take control of a dragon each. If you were thinking that, you would be much mistaken. In fact, you control two humans named Billy and Jimmy. So why isn't it called Double Human? The answer to that probably lies in some ancient tome buried under Pal's desk so we'll never find out!

Double Dragon II is another arcade fighting game convention in which you are able to have two players on the screen together to help each other. Your arch enemy Willy who you may remember from Double Dragon's first appearance, is the big guy with the machine gun. This, you may have killed him first time round but he has been brought back to life with magic - as have his gang members - and he's taken away Marlon and killed her. You and Billy must travel the subway's scintillating screen once again and kill off the gang members with weapons such as grenades, knives, whips and chains.

This game is hardly an arcade perfect conversion but you wouldn't expect that from our humble C64 (yet in 1985)

Anyway, I personally don't think that Double Dragon II should have ever been attempted to be converted to the C64, if anybody wanted the same graphics, sound, size of characters, and speed of the arcade. Apart from that it's reasonable fighting action just don't expect the same quality as the arcade version.

DYNAMITE DUX

Dynamite Dux is yet another fighting game with cartoon like sprites. With this game you must control one duck called Dux, to whom's wings some nasty giant jansons have strapped looking gloves. But although the gloves he can't fly, he's got a cracking left hook!

Well drawn colourful cartoon like sprites such as Pines, Bums Pigs, Hoising Crocs, packs of rats and many more, make this game enjoyable to play. Also, the variety of weapons is good, you can collect bombs, rocket launchers (various types), stones, flame throwers and not forgetting your famous punch. You must avoid obstacles like holes in the road and cliffs that you can fall off. But every game has its style!

Being that was that every about has its style!

Being, the sound isn't up to much and the background is usually pretty dull (which takes away from the cartoon-like theme of the game), but the (good) points (incredible gameplay, two-player option, etc.) do outweigh the bad points.

Fists of Fury II is a good compilation and a must for fighting fans, every where.

From each of the four rounds will go ONE contestant, to the aluminium foil-star-studded final in just three issues' time. So, let's get With this ish's thrilling heat...

Until Computer Buffs of the Year began last issue, only PC's editorial staff fed this much computer game-related tosh in their heads. But now they want to show just how strong they are by testing four sections of the computer games world. Last month it was HH-types and now...

THE CONTESTANTS:

Joe Pomer

(Probe Software)

Joe has worked on most of Probe's games, such as Savage, Turbo OutRun and Wz. He doesn't actually program any more "I'm huge!" he says. He doesn't even own a pair of brown corduroy trousers although, "I had a pair of brown ones, they weren't brown, brown!"

Carl Muller

(Freezone/Imageworks)

The C&A Turtle game was Carl's baby, so blame him. On his desk is a PC and a C&A, "with a note saying that doesn't work!" he laments. His musical tastes are also somewhat limited: Emerson, Marc Almond and Abba. Et, right!

Richard Taylor

(Freezone/PC)

Properly the Brownman was written by PC's very own Richard and he's currently working on a sequel. He certainly doesn't wear brown cards and claims that his desk contains "Paper, Cuts, Half-dried sandwiches and biscuits!" What a guy!

Jason Page (Kniffgold)

He's programmed Off Road Racer amongst other 64 games and works with Andrew Braybrook (Jabber, etc.). Writes stuff a "Lots of paper, definitely a Holy Nole, A cube of steak and a Rubia's clock. He doesn't drive a Porsche, he drives a Ferrari too, er..." "I drive my dad's car, a Datsun Sunny!" he says.

Alan Schreiner (Systems 3)

Programmed Barbarian, Goldrush II, Last Kings 2 and loads of other good stuff. He drives a BMW M5 and says "I'll win. I'll appear wearing a pink knee jockstrap and a black leather top, with a gold chain!" That's the spirit!

Bobby Earle (Oxeye)

Bobby is 20 and has already written parts of Total Recall for Oxeye. Now he's working on the 64 version of Terminator II. Asked if it will teach the competition he says "It certainly will!"

MIGHTY BOMB JACK

It's spring, and what better way to celebrate it than strapping large rubber soles to your Nike 180s and bounding around the urban streets. Rik Henderson loads up this third in a successful arcade series whilst he lays in hospital with two broken ankles.

Just imagine, a world that's only dead in the occasional slug in somebody's lettuce, a world that is as peaceful in reneke Clackson-on-Iles look like downtown Beirut, a world that's rid of all bad feelings in any shape or form, makes you sick, doesn't it? It was also so damn unpleasant that I got on the local bus to the proverbial bus.

Benkerbut (pronounced Baw-ell-one-but, probably) was this entity, and things were so boring for him that he was even considering relocating to Northampton and opening a night-club instead. An evil plan had been bouncing around in his, until now, dormant brain, and it was time to put away the bad bugs and evil.

The main reason for his paradox state was the old happy, King Powers, who's first policies upon taking the post, was to have Dinosaur playing over hisdays. 24 hours a day, and the compulsory watching of films. Unfortunately, Benkerbut has now abdicated the King, the Queen, and their daughter, Moonflower 'who operates the bus' and the sun Powers, and in the process of doing so has derailed all the mighty brothers but one.

Jack is a bit strange, to be honest. For a start he enjoys nothing better than drinking up in his mighty's tobacco and putting his dad's authentic Viking helmet sitting (bought in a service station outside Liverpool Fagnell) on his head (after carefully descending the old ciger lube and rolled up twenty waggings). His other particular brain was collecting bones (so far he's picked up several Hovore Cocktails, one Luscious Shell, and a sea mine), and with the land suddenly becoming so peaceful, the lad was a little upset - his hobby had been ruined.

But now he's back, and the newly derailed has altered his pyramid (the place where he has the happy family tucked up) with Jack's favourite pastime. And it's, bones away for some more.

Mighty Bomb Jack, as you've gotta progress through billions (billion exaggeration) of levels of bones and treasures collecting in order to finally confront the gawker with superior breath and rescue the boring old fort and his family.

Each level consists of about five screens of platform action, that scroll either horizontally or vertically, and are scattered with bones to be collected, treasure chests to be opened, and enemies to avoid. You don't have to do anything but avoid the bad lads to get to the end of each level, but you won't come out of it with much of a score.

It's worthwhile though, to open the treasure chests as you can grab treasure and other bonuses. One of these 'bonus' is a Mighty token, and each one (up to three) can be used to increase Bombjack's powers. One Mighty token will turn out little fellow blue (ie. it has much the same effect as if he'd been out in the cold too long), thus giving him the power to walk, soaked chests. Two will turn him orange (ie. having made the same effect on falling water under a particularly strong gust) and giving him the power to open chests just by walking into them. And three Mighty tokens will turn him green (ie. it has much the same effect as eating a pickled onion and no cream confection) and will change all of our Bombjack-gobbling, moaning friends into hard bones. All of these powers are limited though, so it's a good idea to collect as many of these little buggers as possible.

At the end of the five or six screens will be a doorway that will either open by itself, or open when you've collected the ashme key. Inside this door is an end-of-level room (unlike an end-of-level lobby), in which you must never back to the original two games (in game play terms) and collect all of the bones to open the second door in order to escape. If you perfect the bones in the order in which they fall, you'll be awarded scores of bonus points, and then it's onto the next level.

During the levels are other doors that lead into 'bonus' rooms which normally contain extra chests to be opened. And if you collect too many Mighty tokens (I know I said you should collect bones, but there's a difference between being sensible and being greedy) you'll be sent to the bonus room, where you have to avoid the bad guys for as long as possible. If you do manage to survive though, your GPM rating (Game Duration Value - a way of rating your skill and ability during the game, therefore giving you an extra incentive apart from the score) will go right down.

In all, Mighty Bombyack is a marriage between the original excellent games and Super Mario Brothers. In true celery fashion there are celery chests to be found, and bags of fungus (mush and bounding). The gameplay is so addictive that I had to be torn away from the joystick by the Fire brigade (perhaps because somebody had put superglue all over the stick, the integral, and the graphics and in game

Q The end of level screen. If you collect the bricks in the right order, you'll get major bonus points and a small "I LOVE BOMBAC" badge.

Q He goes away to a tropical island and what does he do? He collects more bombs of course! Why isn't he got a decent hobby?

sounds are what we've come to expect from such games (Impassable, Rainbow Islands, etc.). The BGMs were very, very quiet in recent months (great!) but seems to be back with as much gusto as that which brought us games like

Paperboy and Shovel and Defend all these years ago. It's a nice occasion when the quality of the game is broadcast in the title (and is true), 'cause Bombac is his third game in combination. Mighty

After two such levels, you get to kill a Mr Medium-fog, in the same way as you would an R-type badby - by firing repeatedly at a weak point (floating head, flashing light, etc).

Possibly the most fun bit of it all is the bonus level. You get a view of the side of a skyscraper - it tapers into the distance. There are three stages on which Ninjas walk up and down in a 3D-like invader style. They slowly jump down the ledges and you must Shunken them before they jump off the nearest ledge and the level. 1. Ninjas come from Japan.
2. The dictionary doesn't have 'Ninja' in it but it did have 'Ninjas', which is not just a beautiful euphonious name but also a rather good hardware gaffer word.
3. Cliff Richard used to sing with a band called The Shadowdancers.
4. The Shadowdancers were well known for their 'Ninjas'.

If the public wants another Nenga game then so be it. This one's one of the more worthwhile of the crowded genre.

what you get of the Nenga (singing toward your head is truly comical).

So, you're saying, how does this particular Nenga game compare to the others and siblings of predecessors? Well, the graphics are a mile wide. The Nenga (as it's named in the preview of the run) looks like he's shouting as he chucks the stars and has a particularly happy-go-lucky hairstyle and the dog looks as though it's licking the biscuits rather than ruthlessly swatting them with its large snout. But other than that, they're quite spitting.

Shadow Dancer is a nice conversion, fairly faithful to the arcade (where it's the screen with all the dances for the magic-casting bit, an old story, dare I say and, no, worth a look.

Q As a bonus round, you have to check. Royal Nenga (one of the things wrapped up in the package) if you had to tell them all in the time limit, you'll be on the road of his. (Shameless!)

Crime is running rampant on the streets, innocent civilians are getting hurt, gang warfare is about to tear the city apart.

There's only one man who can save the day, and that man is Mark Luckham. (Hang on, that man is supposed to be Dick Tracy - Ed).

C What's taking behind the brown door? Some more poorly drawn crappy sprites no doubt! And what's that coming this way

C And now there's two of them! This almost resembles one of a Pink Floyd album, it's a shame for the fact that this well is crappily designed!

DICK

Yes too can be Mark Luckham - er, Dick Tracy, in the all action conversion of the film of the same name. Featuring Dick, Tess Truheart (his squeeze), Lips Marks (deceased), Big Boy Caprice (well known villain) and Premiere (Assistant to well known villain). Of course you realise that means you are missing out on Madonna as Breathless Mahoney, so when the blurb accompanying the game claims it follows the script, I just wonder which script that was. Let's face it, Madonna plays a bloody big part in the film. Maybe Titus couldn't afford her.

Dick (the game) starts off in much the same way as Dick (the film) with Dick (the character) investigating the murder of Lips Marks. The finger is pointing at Big Boy Caprice, especially once the leads to The Ritz Club, owned by Lips, had been transferred to Big Boy on the day of his demise. What happens next is anyone's guess since the instructions consist of a pseudo-newspaper highlighting the events and main characters. So what do you do, what's the objective then. What is left is the point of the game! Er, dunn, you better ring Titus and ask them, I hope you can speak French though, 'cos they ain't English.

Well once you got going it becomes pretty obvious what you're supposed to be doing anyway, and since phonecalls outside the UK cost a fortune thanks to those thieving bar stewards at BT (did you know my phone bill was £300! Defragnous! I call it Flagrant profiteering. Taking the shirt off the backs of hard working men and women, the capitalists, bourgeois, running dog lackeys of the fascist, imperialist police state dictatorship (Er, Mark, shut up and get on with it - Ed).

Fah. Anyway, the screen doesn't scroll in this right to left stroling shoot 'em up. You walk to the right and, and then a new screen appears with you on the left. With a bit of luck, you might find a weapon before you get killed, which happens all too often.

You have an energy bar and you can thump people, but even if you do they still generally absorb some of your life force (vampire gangsters?), which makes the game tedious.

If you pick up a weapon it's either the single shot gun, or the machine gun. There's not much difference in performance, and a gangster with a small hole in his head is just as dead as a gangster with no head.

In February 1991,

people open windows, lean out and shoot you, while various men wearing paraphernalia run up and try to grill you from close range. Half of them looked like police officers, which confused the hell out of me.

The end of the first level says you're making your way through the streets and entering a nightclub. Is there you can go and arrest a villain by shooting him (a la Special Branch tactics)? Off he goes to the plot, only to be released a couple of days later, as a newspaper headline tells you.

Um, and there's much more of the same, with you leaping through various locations, avoiding more people, and racking some gear at the end

So what's it actually like them, as a game? Well, in one word, cobblers. You can tell that Technical sophistication is not going to be to the fore when the screens don't scroll like it does on every other version of the game. It doesn't help that the keyboard controls don't work. It gets worse when you look at the grisly aerial graphics. And it becomes a little less or more when you play it and discover just how unplayable and naff the entire thing is.

HELL HOLE

It's hell doncha know - all this reviewing lark. Rik Henderson sits in a MacDonald's in Milton Keynes city centre and ponders why anybody would want to make a game out of it...

Firstly, it's a bit of a smug when your pride and joy space craft goes belly over it, but things can get worse (and undoubtedly do, and it's unsurprising that you had yourself stretched on what can be described as the most perfect planet ever to have spawned from her (or she) that made the universe.

Fortunately you've managed to scramble out of the wreckage with a triggerin' enormous planet, and enough ammo to lay waste to the entire population of Oives (as long as Oives has only three people left and one dog, with a gaming bag, living in the country. It doesn't O! Oh well, there goes my geography GCSE. But even though you've had this lucky O! break, it's hazardous from here to safety. And there's so many aliens to blast that you'd better rearrange your bank date for next year, 'cause it'll take you until then to get there.

Hell Hole is the first release from On-Line Entertainment, which is basically the dulled CRL, turned up and re-named (even the main title screen for the game has CRL plastered all over the place). It also, unfortunately, sees a return to the days when CRL was really struggling, and its games were anything but epic, and Hell Hole is anything but epic.

The art because the graphics are not, so even in fact they're a bit wacked, and could be likened to a good Tetris game (Hawkeye, Gears, etc.) it's the crap gameplay that gives me chronic irritation.

What you have to do is (read a long) a horizontally scrolling (left to right) landscape, blasting the wives of aliens that pose in you, and leap over the occasional creature that appears in the, obviously, 80-1 fitted floor. This is really all there is to it. You can collect bits of alienry (score that give you all kinds of power-ups and the occasional more meaty weapon, and sometimes a bigger creature will come along to give you a spanking.

Although it's all reasonably playable, it's a tad too hard, and a tad too boring. In concept it reminds me of Turrican, but as a very poor substitute indeed, and shouldn't even be mentioned in the same breath as that ultimate great. If you really feel like trying Hell Hole out one day, I'd advise that you wait until it comes out on budget, otherwise it'll make a hell of a hole in your pocket (and for very little).

O! All alone on a planet run by well-armed American women may seem like Hell to some, but I'm looking a return about it!

TALES FROM THE SCRIPT II:

Fresh from the pages of Speakeasy magazine, is Dave Hughes' column of scandal, gossip, rumour, and other things completely made up on the spot (nah - it's all true, honest!) - Dave) all to do with the big screen.

SHORT TAKES

THE UNWATCHABLE IN PURSUIT OF THE UNFILMABLE

The month's big news for action-movie fans (and Queens fans) is that everyone's favourite (except me, really) chrome-plated crime-buster will return in HIGHlander II, presumably being made following HIGHlander II's success on video.

Regulars Nancy Allen and Dan O'Hare are already signed to the picture (which reportedly includes Robin Becking, not sure but her RED-DOGS) but this time they are without the silver guy himself, since Peter Weller is tied up with David (THE FLY) (Cronenberg's latest masterpiece, an adaptation of William S. Burroughs')

"unfilmable THE NAKED LUNCH"... a nightmare fantasy populated with "reptiles", "punks", "witches" and "shape-changing monsters" (kiss).

THIRD TIME TURKEY

Two more Philadelphia-area movies with plenty of news are ALIEN II (not ALIENS II as misreported elsewhere) and HIGHlander II: THE MAGICKIAN.

By the time you read this, the former will have outgassed at Duckingham's Pinewood Studios, but it's still anybody's guess as to what the end of movie looks for us. The last script studies were given final Filipey (Christopher Weaver) waiting after a crash-landing on a colony planet sun by shaven-faced monks to find that Alien and Hicks (characters from ALIENS) have been murdered and that aroid (or artificial person). Alien has disappeared investigating all this, and discovers a mysterious cult experimenting with the alien and 'hopping' toward the cost. Allen Queen inside her. One top secret version of the script has a crop-haired Mr. Weaver slapping himself in excused fail and writing himself obtain determined that (a) the Queen will never be born, and (b) they won't make ALIENS II. What I can tell you is that David Filipey (who made Madon's Vegas video) is directing, and that Charles Darrow and Galtan co-star. The last news is that, Filipey made none of the survivors of the eggplants ALIENS return.

Similarly, Christopher Lambert has expressed no interest in repeating his role as Connor McLeod in HIGHlander II: THE MAGICKIAN — not surprising after the mess Russ Mulcahy made of it. THE QUICKHAWK. The third film, Paradox, concentration on McLeod's son, Connor Jr. (Christian Slater from HEATHERS, YOUNG GUNS II and PUMP UP THE VOLUME, who acts out in search of his father and the identity of the mysterious Magician. He is accompanied by a hologram of Ramsey played one again by Sean Connery, of course) but only while Fox have raised Savage of the great Shogun but over time the last one!

And don't even think of seeing the about CHILDREN PLAY II.

SIX OF THE WORST

And it's wasn't depressing enough having three movies from one-half-baked idea, how does it sound? My new word: indefiniteness of the STAR TRUCK, BLM STREET and THE HOWLING (yes, we all on the way).

STAR TRUCK: VOYAGE INTO INFINITY, which reunites the usual old-generation cast for a trip through a black hole, celebrates the 25th anniversary of the story. Johnny Depp, Dechen, Kelly and Kenney (who is also executive producer) are Jack (YOUNG GUNS), BUTMAN, Pelton and Christian Slater (again), both playing Morgana, and Whipple (CRIMINAL MINDS).

Goldberg, working for the big screen the Samurai the novel TV experience within the fourth season of Star Trek: The Next Generation.

Probably Kruger takes us a new direction in New Line's FREDDY'S DEAD: THE FINAL NIGHTMARE, still shooting in L.A. Robert Englund does the gilly game once again, but this time the inner vampire had better be to be filmed as "Freddie Newt", a state-of-the-art 3-D process. Gold knows how co-star Roseanne Barr will look in three dimensions, but Alice Cooper (as Freddie) is neglected) should provide some much-needed comic relief.

HOWLING IN THE TREES will probably be in video shops

by the first you read this, and I must have missed a couple of parts of this drama named thereby THE MARGINALS and THE REVENGE. No, actually I didn't miss them at all.

HOOK, LIONHEART AND STINKER

Quite pleasing to see that the few approved blockbusters still provide way overproduced spectacles.

Steven Spielberg's Peter Pan project, HOOK, has an earlier cast now that it's stamped Disney's theme park comes-to-life story JUPITER JACK on a lesser Ambin talent (yay). HOOK is a kind of sequel (back to the Peter Pan story) depicting Peter (Haley Joel Osmund) as a Wall Street stockbroker with Trickett's (Lyle) PRETTY WOMAN reborn as his agent. Duvall (JIMMY KANE) Hoffman, Doo (ROGER RABBIT) Hoffman, Haggis (Anything Really Worth and Wanda) (JAY LEFT FOOT) Foster and star Jay Captain Hook, Mr. Smee, Wendy and Nurse respectively and director has it that Steve (PARENTHOOD) starts as cameo. It seems pretty certain that a PRINCE OF THIEVES is the biggest film of the year that HOOK will look nothing less as so, despite competition from other blockbusters CHRISTOPHER COLUMBUS (Foley) (PUSH) Scott directs Nave (PRINCE OF THIEVES) Costner. As the GOOSE-HERD PART II (Gavin) and the (PROXY) Herring. Clay is a 30th anniversary director of America (old), DRACULA (Florida Ford) Coppola's to-be-rented romantic vampire tale starring Jeremy (PARENTAL OF POTLUKE) from Illinois (HEATHER) Ryan, John (Everything) Betsy Part and Joe (LETHAL WEAPON) (Adams) and, of course, BATMAN II (Tim Burton once again directing) this time without Michael Keaton or (JULIENNE) Gulp and Peltor but with Jack Nicholson (Lester) (Edman) Danny DeVito (Penguin) and tightly leavy Robin Williams (Peltor).

TOM & JERRY TOM BACK TO HOLLYWOOD THE HARD WAY

Tom back to the future and ROCKY HARBOR star Christopher (Lyle) seems to be enjoying up on every "in production" cast list around. For a start he's playing master Uncle Fester in the big screen version of this novel (John) (ALAN) Family alongside Paul (James) Julie as Gomez and Angeles (THE GRIFFIN)
